The Gifts of Heritage

When we speak of Heritage we are referencing more than our genealogical ancestry. There's a difference between relatives and ancestors. Relatives give us our brown eyes and bowed legs; ancestors bestow a legacy. Relatives are those we tell stories about; ancestors call us to carry stories forward. Relatives live on in our DNA; ancestors live in the whispers of our hearts. Our relatives allowed us to be here; our ancestors tell us why we are here. The difference comes down to values. Values we use to construct not just our stories but ourselves.

Ancestors of genealogy, ancestors of culture, ancestors of choice. Those who came before who influence who we are and who we are becoming. Join us this month as we explore the Gifts of Heritage.

All Hands on Deck!

“Ahoy, me mateys! Batten down the hatches! Our beautiful blue boat sprung a leak! The sails need mendin’! There’s water comin’ from above and below!”

As most of our congregants know by now, a pipe erupted in one of the classrooms of our building. Unfortunately, we have also been hit with some persistent leaks from the roof. Did we mention the A/C went out in part of the building?

“Blimey! We’ve been swallowed by a whale!”

Perhaps I’m being a bit dramatic. However, we certainly must acknowledge that our building is in need of some repairs. This vessel has ferried us for over 32 years now, and it deserves our attention.

The Board of Trustees has been very active over the last few months working to right the ship.

Thanks to the quick ingenuity of our mate Steve Smith, we were able to “plug” the broken pipe and maintain access to the building until a plumber could come out and fix it. Working closely with the Friendship Forest and UUCG staff to organize a convenient time for the work to be done, the plumber had to jack-hammer into the foundation and then patch it back up with fresh concrete. It was quite a racket!

We met with a roofing expert to get a quote on a long-term solution to the ongoing roof leaks, while also discussing some immediate solutions to prevent damage to the interior. HVAC companies have come in to offer options for the A/C repair.

“Yo ho ho! All hand hoy! Indeed, me hearties, we can retimber our planks!”

We have many opportunities for you to engage in this process with us, and we hope you can find the time to join us in caring for our beautiful blue boat.

Property Beautification Days: every first Saturday of the month, maintenance and improvements to the grounds

Roof Work: a small group of folks who can comfortably and safely help apply sealants to the roof

Chairs: assist the staff with identifying and removing stained or damaged chairs from the sanctuary and common spaces

Ceiling Tile Replacement: as the leaks are repaired, the damaged ceiling tiles will need to be replaced

Portico: during the cooler months, we will be repairing damage from carpenter bees and sealing the lumber to prevent future damage

Playground: sealing the playground, now that repairs have been made to the structure (thanks to Gary Kiel!)

Please feel free to reach out to us and let us know how you’d like to contribute! Your time and talent are a treasure. Together, we make this voyage better.

“Fair winds, me hearties!”

Special Announcement!

Following the recommendation of the Ministerial Search Committee, the Board of Trustees is thrilled to announce an agreement to hire Reverend Nancy Palmer Jones, who will begin her ministry with us in January 2024. Rev. Nancy comes to us from California, where she served for 17 years as the minister of First Unitarian Church of San Jose. She is looking forward to starting her journey with us in January, and we are pleased to welcome her.

A Message from Rev. Nancy Palmer Jones

Dear Members and Friends of the Unitarian Universalist Congregation of Gwinnett,

What a joy it is to write this first note to you, UUCG, as we get ready for some deep and fruitful ministry together beginning in January 2024. I know that these next few months will fly by.

In early July, when I first heard that you were still looking for a part-time contract minister, I felt an instinctive pull to find out more about you. It surprised me: I didn't think I was looking for a return to the parish, but this pull was so strong and so moving that it brought tears to my eyes. Then, Rev. Jan's loving descriptions, Unitarian Universalist consultants' praise of your "thoughtfulness, kindness, and spiritual maturity," and the honest, wide-ranging conversations I've had with your Search Committee and board representatives have all strengthened that initial tug on my heart, mind, and soul. Your mission—curiosity, courage, compassion—why, these are the values that have guided my life, as they have your congregation. In fact, they have fueled my trip across country on this first stage of my two-part move to Lawrenceville; I will have stories to share when we get together!

Now, I know these core spiritual commitments will continue to inspire and ground us as we face what life will bring during our period of shared ministry.

“What life will bring”: How can I possibly describe briefly what my life has brought so far? Here are a few things you might like to know:

I grow up in San Antonio and Dallas, Texas, a Methodist, a swimmer, a budding actor, a lover of laughter and friendships. My earliest commitments to justice, equity, and compassion spring from the rich racial and cultural diversity I love in my hometown, contrasted with the heartbreaking harm and the constriction of humanity that racism, homophobia, and other oppressions cause.

I move to California to study English and French at Stanford. Then I venture briefly into computer programming before finding my way home to my first twin vocations as professional actor and freelance book editor. The camaraderie of creating something in community, the challenge of expressing truths about what it means to be human, which is acting, and the inner life of helping to bring words, ideas, and stories to life, which is editing (and writing), make for a lively, if low-income way to keep body and soul together.

In my mid-40s, I move to New York City where the acting light finally grows dim, and Unitarian Universalism and a call to ministry grow bright. Harvard Divinity School in Cambridge offers the multi-religious and justice-oriented focus I long for in seminary. A yearlong internship in Wellesley Hills, Massachusetts, then a yearlong interim ministry on Long Island, New York, launch the never-ending process of letting my authentic ministry emerge.

In 2005, the First Unitarian Church of San José calls me to be its settled Senior Minister. Sound the trumpets! We learn and grow, love and mourn, experiential and adapt together for 17 beautiful, complex years. With Karin Lin, I co-write Mistakes and Miracles: Congregations on the Road to Multiculturalism (2019), which was the UUA's Common Read last year. I “retire” from FUCSJ in June 2022 ...

And I jump onto the staff for People Acting in Community Together (PACT), Santa Clara County's faith-based community organizing nonprofit with whom I had been so involved while at FUCSJ. From my year on staff with PACT, I bring treasures of relationship building and organizing wisdom. The job wasn't a match for me at this time—and thank goodness, for that opens the door to discovering a renewed call to congregational ministry in a new place, in a new form, with a new and beautiful community.

Oh, and I have been married twice and divorced twice. I have known personal and communal heartbreak and loss as well as joy and fulfillment. I am all-gender-loving and single. I am woven into a wide, beautiful web of family, Family, and friends, which truly includes all that is. And my cat Coby, who chose me as his person in 2019, teaches me about connection and independence, healthy differentiation and adoring snuggles every day!

What stories will you share, UUCG, about the journeys that have led you to this time and place? What history, hopes, visions, concerns, and emerging sense of call will we weave into UUCG's ever-deepening meaning and purpose?

May our work together be of good use to all of us and to the wider communities we serve.

With Love at the center,
Rev. Nancy

Approaching Halloween Choices Thoughtfully

For many of us, Halloween is among our favorite times of the year. And it's important as we get into "spooky mode" to be mindful of the concern surrounding cultural appropriation. Halloween can remain lighthearted and fun, even while we approach it with intention and thoughtfulness.

Cultural appropriation refers to the borrowing or imitation of elements from a culture by members of another culture, often without understanding or respect for the original context. During Halloween, this issue becomes particularly contentious as some may inadvertently perpetuate harmful stereotypes or disrespect sacred traditions with costumes that mimic specific ethnic, religious, or indigenous attire. For example, dressing up as a Native American or a "gypsy", wearing traditional religious garments, or painting faces to imitate a different race can reinforce prejudice.

As you consider your Halloween choices, I encourage you to be creative in a way that respects cultural diversity. How can we transform Halloween into a celebration that bridges cultures, promotes understanding – or is just plain fun - and ensures that everyone can enjoy the festivities without harm or offense?

Greeters and The Party of Whoever Shows Up

Walking through the front door of our Little Blue Barn in the Hollow carries a lot of emotion. We respect that investment by making our appreciation known and by asking folks to sign our guest book, make name tags, and find their way to their destination. This new program year is a great time for our current greeters to help interested folks get started "under the wing" of experience. I celebrate our long-time greeters and newcomers alike, and we could use another six or more folks doing this task. "Many hands make light work." In addition to the power of their presence,

Greeters do some Membership communication so that we can keep track of our newcomers.

Let me know if you would like to join in this important work.

Hospitality's Resounding Successes

Enjoyment of a common meal and conversation about shared interests is a great foundation for building community. Once a month is enough right now, however, with continued success, we could grow our "fun and fellowship" events outside of Sunday morning. Signing up to help with potluck does not require you to bring food. I look forward to seeing you there! And, I'm looking for "a few good folks" to help coordinate the volunteer crew that has signed up.

Let me know if you would like to be part of a team of "potluck leads" and I'll put you in touch with each other.

NOVEMBER PREVIEW:

Power, Privilege, and Justice - A Discussion Group on Resisting Racism

In November, I and (hopefully) a couple of other folks will offer a series of discussions about racism. Through December, we will have discussions centered around the book, "Mistakes and Miracles," which was last year's UUA Common Read. The standard Covenant for this work is adapted from the one used previously by Barbara and Bob in their program about racism, and I will share it with all prior to the beginning of program registration. The study materials and agenda for each session will also be made available to the Congregation.

Where Passion and Need Meet

It is my great hope that we can help each other prepare for the times when we can be most effective and joyful in our work in that "sweet spot" where our passion meets the World's need.

My passion for leadership emphasizes support for each other at every turn. This is why I think the best leadership for groups, sessions, seminars, etc. is three folks who can share the load, fill in for each other, and support each other.

My passion for volunteer recruiting is a personal approach- looking someone in the eyes and asking "can you help?" I think this approach is most effective when we have someone already working in a role as an example, as well as a detailed job description.

Radical Welcome works to center marginalized voices, encourage dissent inside of our covenants and our democratic process, and make consistent expressions of gratitude for everyone's presence and for everyone's contribution. I find that I can do that in both my Lay Minister role and my Worship Leader role, and I am honored to serve such a beautiful and powerful beloved community!

Labyrinth Refresh! Free Plants!

By Karen Smith (she/her)

On the first Saturday in October, 10/7/ at 10:00am, the Workday Crew will begin to refresh the planting around the outside of the labyrinth. There are lots of irises, day lilies and crocosmia that have exceeded their space and their welcome. All of these plants will be available for the work crew to take home that Saturday. Our plan is to replace these flowers with native plants. Not into digging? The leaves will need to be removed from the deck, walkway, and drive way. The handicap and other parking space signs need to be washed off. And the garbage cans could always benefit from attention. Spoiler alert: if it's not in the trash can, the garbage guys won't pick it up. It will be a lovely day for being outside and cheering on your fellow workers. Coffee and snacks are always welcome. See you there!

Kousa Dogwood

Did you know we have some Kousa Dogwood trees on our property? Also did you know, the fruits are edible? You can eat them fresh off the tree, but most people discard the skin as it's thick and slightly bitter. Feel free to grab a snack next time you walk by one!

Good Trouble - 2023

By Barbara Stahnke (she/her)

Good Trouble – 2023 – Fourth Sundays after the service at 12:30pm, in the Sanctuary and on Zoom, Facilitated by your Lay Ministers for Connecting Beyond and Radical Welcome

At UUCG, we have a history of learning, and then doing. What does it take to move from learning to acting, as a community? What power do we have? What do we want to act on? How do we (UUCG) target our actions to best benefit the wider community (Gwinnett County) with the knowledge, skills, and abilities we have at hand? How can we make a difference? Let's take 2023 and do the work to identify the best way for our community, UUCG, to take action to help our community, Gwinnett County, become the Beloved Community.

Do we double down on Radical Welcome and get out in the community to stand up for our LGBTQ kin?

Do we focus on the democratic process and engage our community to vote?

Do we focus on our Green Space and engage in Environmental Justice?

Or, do we.....

How do we most effectively put our faith in action? Let's start with a proven tool for success as recommended by the UUA. Asset Mapping: Document a community's existing resources and incorporate identified strengths into community development work.

This program year we will use the time set aside for Good Trouble to examine our congregation's assets and set goals for the work ahead. We invite you to join us.

This month, on October 22nd, we will build on the work that we did in September. We will continue with asset mapping finalize our map and begin to create our plan.

Good Trouble will take a break in November and December, and come back ready to energize the work on the 4th Sunday in January.

The more folks we have engaged with this planning, the more effective we can be.

If you would like to be involved with the facilitation of this program, please contact Christiana, UUCG's Coordinator of Family Ministries

Congregational Feedback

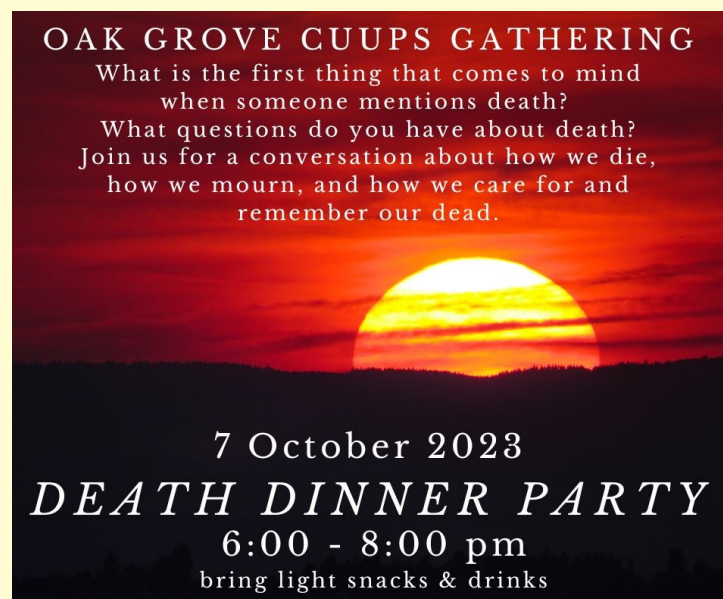

During the Ingathering Service on September 10th, Service Leader Sherree Bailey invited everyone in attendance to consider what gifts you bring to this community (what are you planting?), and also what you would like to see in the services and programs at UUCG (what do you hope to grow?). The feedback given about what we can create as a community was fantastic, and your Shared Ministry Council has taken it all to heart.

We – Lay Ministers, Worship Leaders, and Staff – want you to know that we hear you, we want to bring these dreams to fruition with you; and so would like to address some of the specific requests here in this space.

- Some of you expressed a desire for Joys & Sorrows spoken aloud during worship to return. Your Worship Team heard you, and you will see the practice restored beginning with the October 1st Worship Service.
- Many of you requested more gatherings with food and beverage served. We agree that gathering and breaking bread together is a wonderful way to foster community, and we would love to provide these opportunities. This requires a robust and committed Hospitality Team – volunteers like you who value coming together as a community over a shared meal, and are willing to support these gatherings by preparing and restoring the space in which we gather, and blessing the kitchen area by cleaning up when the festivities are concluded. Is this you? Reach out to RadicalWelcome@uucg.org or ConnectingWithin@uucg.org and let your Lay ministers help you get connected.
- You've told us that you want to be engaged, but those QR codes on the screen go by so fast! We are working on a solution that will not extend the length of the announcements. A QR that links to the main registration page will be available in print on a bulletin board in the foyer of UUCG. Those of you in attendance on Zoom can always ask the Zoom Worship Host to share any links you missed in the chat, so you can access them directly.

This ritual was about what you wish to see grow from the seeds you plant. Accordingly, we invite you to get involved in the sowing of these seeds! Most of the suggestions were submitted anonymously, so as much as we'd like to engage in direct communication with you... we are responding here generally. Please reach out if you see one of your ideas here and want to talk with us about making it happen!

And this invitation to share your vision with us was not a one-time occurrence. Our inboxes are always open for you to share what is on your mind. Look for more responses to the ideas shared in upcoming issues of this newsletter.

Ministry: Connecting Within

Nurturing Welcome

When I first came to UUCG, I was welcomed from the front door, through the sanctuary doors, within the service's message and afterwards by members at hospitality hour. This welcoming was no small thing. It's the main reason I returned to UUCG. During my years at UUCG, I have become more and more involved in different groups and roles, but it was that initial welcoming that engaged me, that made me believe there would be a place for me among what were strangers.

I was invited by group members to join their groups, or to at least, try them out, and so, I did. There remains after all the technology of our age, no substitute for a personal invitation. We have many groups here at UUCG. If you are a member of one of those groups, please share that experience by inviting newcomers into your group. Let's extend our welcome past our front door and into the groups that encourage us to connect and get to know one another.

Side with Love

By Barbara Stahnke (she/her), Lay Minister for Connecting Beyond

The Unitarian Universalist Association (UUA) sponsors a public advocacy campaign that seeks to harness love's power to stop oppression. This campaign is the Side with Love (SoL) campaign. All are welcome to join – whether Unitarian Universalist (UU) or not UU, whether member, friend, or visitor of a UU fellowship or congregation, or whether a UU, another faith, no faith, or unnamed faith. The focus is on love as the foundation of justice work in the world; the SoL campaign strives to be of service to our communities and advocate for change in our local, state, national, and international environs. You can learn more about the Side with Love campaign at <https://www.uua.org/action/love>

Read more about our Action of Immediate Witness and the arrest of two UU ministers at one protest event, and read about the two ministers who attended the delivery of the over 100,000 signatures from Atlanta who want a referendum for the city to vote on. If you are interested in the Stop Cop City Movement, you do not have to live in Atlanta. There are action steps you can take. However, you're able, SoL has a way for you to join this action of immediate witness.

- Sign up for rapid response text alerts to be notified of urgent actions; for example, there was an action in late September to assist with the matching of signatures to the Voter Rolls.
- Join the SoL, Stop Cop City weekly huddle for updates on the landscape and evolving needs. Thursdays from 3-4 PM online.
- Explore the six-lesson small group discussion guide to explore the connection between our faith and the calls to defund policing and law enforcement. Let me know if you want to facilitate this discussion with our congregation.
- Learn how you can support those who are arrested for resisting injustice and sign up for the toolkit. I have not read it yet, AND I would be interested in hearing your thoughts.

Other SoL events coming up: Monthly Spiritual Practice: Faithful Grounding, Local and State Virtual Events with a Social or Environmental Justice focus; the October Side with Love Mixer; and the October Skill Up is on “Risk Discernment”.
