Beyond Sunday Morning

Prayer: by DeReau K. Farrar

That which is in us and all around us and which constantly draws us to our holiest selves, remind me that my freedom, fully expressed, gives freedom to others.

As I wander among the trees, accept my silent gratitude for not having their stationary life.

And, most of all, please remove from me any tendency, by action or in spirit, to quiet the expression of others.
Amen.

Next Sunday, October 18

Faith Development at 10:00am: Lectio Divina and Listening for the Divine Voice

Lectio Divina is a Christian practice for exploring the meaning of scripture. In this session we will engage this practice by applying it to a short secular reading, bringing different discernment questions to the text, with each question inviting us to listen to the text in a new way.

Worship Service at 11:00am: Which Who Do You Do?

Can We Hear the Voices of Curiosity, Courage and Compassion

There are healing, healthy, sickening, encouraging, critical, challenging and comforting voices inside us.

By paying attention to what piques our curiosity, what gives us a heart that cares and takes action to alleviate suffering, and what opens us to compassion for all life, ourselves included!
